

MOUNT SINAI SCHOOL OF MEDICINE

Fiscal Year 2009

(rev. 5/2009)

Financial Information for Use on Training Grants (NRSAs) and for Graduate Students on NIH Research Project Grants

Effective for all competing and non-competing awards issued on or after October 1, 2005

Stipend

Predoctoral	20,976
Postdoctoral
Years Experience
0	37,368
1	39,360
2	42,204
3	43,860
4	45,504
5	47,460
6	49,344
7 or more	51,552

Trainee Related Expenses

Individual (Fellowships) & Institutional NRSAs
(includes health insurance):

Predoctoral	4,200
Postdoctoral	7,850

Travel

Typically $1,000/trainee to attend an annual conference

Tuition for Medical School

Year 1-3	34,250
Year 4	33,250

Tuition, Fees

Preaward (for use in application, always request the full amount in the grant application and progress report):

Predoctoral	- $30,720
Postdoctoral-	per credit, check with graduate school
dual degree MD/PhD-	$18,485 per sem.

Postaward (once NRSA award is given)

Predoctoral

NIH will pay (of the combined tuition, fees) 60% of the total, up to $16,000 for single degree, $21,000 for dual degree.

Tuition, Fees (cont.)

Postdoctoral

NIH will pay (of the combined tuition, fees) 60% of the total, up to $4,500, $16,000 for formal degree

Institutional Allowance(s) / Indirect Costs

Individual NRSAs-Fellowships (includes health insurance):

Predoctoral	4,200
Postdoctoral	7,850

Institutional NRSAs: 8% of Direct Costs with the exception of Tuition, Fees, and equipment

Graduate Students on NIH Research Project Grants

Stipend	29,000
---------	--------

Health Insurance

Single	3,080
Single +1	5,946
Family	9,322

Tuition:

To be determined based on available funds after deducting the stipend and the health benefits. Any tuition charges that push the total (stipend + health insurance + tuition) beyond $37,368 will be waived for students that are on research project grants. In cases where a student has family health insurance, the direct compensation plus health insurance slightly exceeds 37,368. In these cases all tuition will be waived and the Graduate School will provide the funds for health insurance in excess of 37,368.